

Post Office and Military Games.

Arrangements are well under way for one of the largest military and athletic carnivals ever held in the history of sports. The affair will be held in the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory on Saturday evening, Nov. 23, under the auspices of the Brooklyn Post Office Clerks and the Forty-seventh Regiment A. A. The regular army will play an important part in the carnival, having entered a team in the tug of war competition, which has an international flavor. Ten nations will be represented, the most formidable being the Finnish-

American team, champions of America. Uncle Sam's regulars will also present Butt's manual and bayonet exercises, accompanied by their Bugle Corps. A wall-scaling contest, in which the local military organizations will try to show the regular army some pointers, will be a feature. Other events will be middle and long distance runs and bicycle races, in which the cream of the metropolitan district will be seen in action. Music will be furnished by the Letter Carriers' Band. Information and entry blanks can be obtained from John J. Fleeson of the Brooklyn Post Office.

The New York Times

Published: October 13, 1912

Copyright © The New York Times